The buying decision process is the decision-making process used by consumers regarding market transactions before, during, and after the purchase of a good or service. It can be seen as a particular form of a cost-benefit analysis in the presence of multiple alternatives.. Common examples include shopping and deciding what to eat. Decision-making is a psychological construct.

Capturing leads is easy; qualifying and nurturing them until they turn into buyers is hard. Consider this: in the B2B software industry, the conversion rate from visitor to lead is 7%, but from visitor to close is a measly 0.68%. The lead qualification, nurturing and closing process depends on customer insight. Simply put, the more you know about your leads, the better you can serve them.
