review 1: It was interesting to read about the things adoptive parents need to go through just to fulfill their dreams of being parents. I didn't realize there were training classes and introductory booklets and special 800 numbers. Upsetting as there are those parents who could use some guidance and classes before being parents.

Novels run on various kinds of fuel. Jennifer Gilmore's remarkable novel The Mothers runs on a combination of rage and desire, two dominant emotions felt by her narrator, Jesse, who along with her husband Ramon is on a long, drawn-out quest to have a child. Unable to conceive, Jesse becomes comfortable with the decision to adopt a baby domestically, through what is known as "open adoption," in which all parties involved are aware of one another's identities.
